What You'll Actually Pay

Compounded semaglutide is $155/mo on the quarterly plan ($465 for 3 months), or $155 for the first month then $195/mo monthly. Compounded tirzepatide is $195/mo quarterly ($585 for 3 months), or $215 for the first month then $275/mo monthly. Every plan includes everything, with no separate membership, consultation, or shipping charge.

No Insurance Required
Pricing is flat and does not depend on coverage, formularies, prior authorization, or appeals. Plans are also FSA and HSA eligible, so you can use pre-tax dollars even without insurance.

No Hidden Fees
There is no membership fee, no consultation fee, no shipping fee, and no supplies fee. Your medication and injection supplies are included in the plan price.

No Long-Term Contract
The quarterly plan runs three months, not six or twelve. Cancel anytime with notice before your next billing period; medication costs are not refundable.

GLP-1 Without Insurance: What It Costs Everywhere Else

Brand-name GLP-1s list around $1,000/mo or more without coverage, and cash-pay telehealth programs typically run $250 to $500. The advertised number, though, is often not the total you actually pay.

The Intro Price That Expires
A low first-month price that rises significantly afterward is common, so the number that got you in the door is not the number you pay long term.

The Membership Fee On Top
Many programs charge a monthly membership separately from the medication, so the real cost is the sum of both, not the advertised figure.

The Six-Month Upfront Commitment
Some programs only offer their lowest rate if you pay six months upfront, turning a monthly dose into a figure into a four-figure commitment before you know whether the medication suits you.

How MaxLife Works

From here to medication in three steps.

1. Check Your Eligibility
Complete an online medical intake in about five minutes with no upfront payment. A licensed provider reviews it to decide whether treatment is appropriate.
2. Get Prescribed
If approved, your prescription goes to a licensed partner pharmacy. MaxLife names its pharmacy partners (Hallandale, Red Rock, Strive) rather than keeping them vague.
3. Start Treatment
Medication ships free overnight in an insulated container, and ongoing provider messaging covers dose adjustments and side-effect support.

Which GLP-1 Is Right for You?

A licensed provider decides what is appropriate, but here is how the two options compare.

Why MaxLife Is Different

Compared with the two realistic alternatives for someone paying out of pocket: brand-name prices, and other cash-pay telehealth programs.

What's Included in Every Plan

Every plan includes your medication, injection supplies, licensed provider review, ongoing messaging for dose adjustments and side effects, and free overnight shipping. The compounded formula includes B vitamins to help reduce gastrointestinal side effects. No insurance and no hidden fees.

Built for People Paying Out of Pocket

Your Plan Excludes Weight Loss
Most plans treat weight loss medication as an optional benefit and exclude it outright. That is a plan-design decision, not a judgment about your case, and cash pay is the realistic route.

You Were Denied or Are Stuck in Appeals
Prior authorization is slow and frequently denied for weight-loss use. An eligibility check takes minutes by comparison.

You're Paying Brand-Prices Now
People currently paying four figures a month are the largest group who switch, and the active ingredient does not change when they do.

The MaxLife Difference

Everything Included, One Price
The plan price is the total: medication, supplies, provider review, ongoing support, and shipping, with nothing added at checkout or at refill.

Price Match Guarantee
MaxLife's lowest price and price-match guarantee is how it stands behind the price, so you do not have to price-check the whole market yourself.

Licensed Providers, Named Pharmacies
Providers are licensed in your state and partner pharmacies (Hallandale, Red Rock, Strive) are named openly, the transparency signal that separates a legitimate program from a cheap one.
